About BioRRAP user IDs

- BioRRAP (Biological Research Regulatory Approval Portal) is a centralized mechanism facilitate Biological Research Regulatory Approval. All researchers and public, private R&D organizations and stakeholders undertaking biological research which require regulatory approval(s) are required to register on this national portal.
- The site helps you track the regulatory approvals for a biological research proposal on a single portal.
- You can read more about it at <https://biorrap.gov.in/Home/FAQ>.
- Any researcher can create a user ID for free, under the organization you are affiliated with (in our case, JIPMER). It has to be approved by the organization.

Create an account with BioRRAP

1. Go to <http://biorrap.gov.in/Home/SearchOrganization>, search for JIPMER (as shown below), and click on our institution's name in the drop-down menu.

2. Request for a new user ID in the page that opens.
3. After you create an ID, request the Dean Research to approve that ID. You can email the request to managerresearchprojects@jipmer.ac.in with these details:
 - Name (first name, middle name, last name)
 - Designation and department
 - Email ID
 - Mobile phone number
 - A copy of your current ID
4. The Dean research office will approve the request online and intimate you.
