Various organisations organised mass reading of the Preamble pledge to mark Constitution Day celebrations on Wednesday.

Pondicherry University's School of Law organised a function to mark the anniversary. In his Constitution Day address, L.S. Sathyamurthy, Secretary (Law), Government of Puducherry highlighted the Constitutional perspectives of good governance by apprising the gathering about the role of the Constitution in ensuring good governance in India.

The rights doctrine as available to the citizens springs from strong government actions only, he said.

Preamble reading

This was followed by a reading of the Preamble by K. Tharanikkarasu, Vice-Chancellor of the university. Victor Anandkumar, Dean (in-charge) and Gurminder Kaur, Head of Law (in-charge), also spoke.

During the event, commemorative photographs of the members of Constituent Assembly along with the reproduction of the original Preamble were also released.

The NSS unit of Pondicherry University, along with the Reservation Cell, garlanded the portrait of Dr. B.R. Ambedkar.

At Jipmer, a gathering of doctors, nurses, students and staff chorused the Preamble pledge to commemorate the 75th year of the adoption of the Constitution of India. According to a press note, functions were organised at the administrative block, hospital building and academic centre.

At NLC India Limited (NLCIL), the Preamble was read out by Prasanna Kumar Motupalli, CMD, and Functional Directors.
